

Dr. Archelle Georgiou serves on the Board of Directors for the Society for Women's Health Research and is a well-recognized physician leader who combines her deep knowledge of clinical medicine with her vast experience in business and healthcare administration to pursue her passion for improving the healthcare system.

One of Dr. Georgiou's greatest joys is using the media to communicate directly with the public and health consumers. She conducts a twice weekly Fox TV healthcare segment in the Twin Cities. She offers viewers a practical and balanced analysis of the latest health care news headlines and translates the information into practical tips they can use to take better care of themselves. She is also a Fellow with the University of Minnesota Center for Spirituality and Healing and works collaboratively with the Center to empower consumers to navigate the healthcare system.

Dr. Georgiou serves as a Senior Fellow with Newt Gingrich's Center for Health Transformation. Dr. Georgiou is a frequently invited speaker at healthcare industry and consumer forums on topics such as health reform, health information technology, and innovative health models. Some of the highlights include being a guest on Oprah and Friends with Dr. Mehmet Oz, testifying as an expert witness in Congress and being an annual guest lecturer at the Wharton School of Business.

Dr. Georgiou is a graduate of the Johns Hopkins School of Medicine. She trained and practiced in internal medicine in Northern California before transitioning into healthcare administration and policy. She lives in Wayzata, Minnesota with her husband and three children.
